Symposium Wednesday at Richard Stockton College in Galloway Township to explore energy issues

By CAITLIN DINEEN Staff Writer pressofAtlanticCity.com |
Monday, February 20, 2012 8:53 pm

PressOfAtlanticCity.com

More than 200 people are expected to attend the Energy Symposium scheduled to take place Wednesdayat Th Richard Stockton College of New Jersey in Galloway Township.

The event — which takes place from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the new Campus Center — is sponsored by the Will J. Hughes Center for Public Policy.

This year's theme is "Energy 40/40: Looking Back 40 Years and Looking Forward 40 Years."

"This event puts energy industry leaders, experts and activists together in one room to discuss the energy issues facing New Jersey," Daniel Douglas, director of the Hughes Center, said.

Click for more photos: Discuss Energy issues facing New Jersey 0 1158