Republicans in the 9th Legislative District continue to dominate their Democratic opponents, although many voters remained unsure of whom they were choosing to represent them, according to a new poll released today by the William J. Hughes Center for Public Policy.

"Redistricting and the low-key nature of this campaign seem to have produced the high level of 'not sure' voters," Daniel J. Douglas, Hughes Center director, said in a statement. "The legislative redistricting process has changed the boundaries of the 9th Legislative
