

Making college work: Report aims for less cost, more value

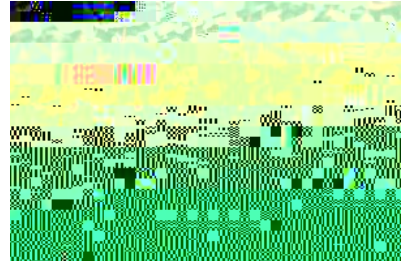

Dino Flammia

Share on Twitter

Taking on one of the hardest issues to tackle, a new report out of Richard Stockton College offers key recommendations for policymakers on how to make college more accessible, affordable and valuable for students and their families.

The lengthy report from Higher Education Strategic Information & Governance, part of the school's William J. Hughes Center for Public Policy, was based on surveys of citizens and "executive roundtables" that included educators and business leaders in New Jersey.

Scott Olson, Getty Images