

Richard Stockton College Students and Staff Headed to North Carolina to Aid Habitat for Humanity for Alternative Spring Break

Sixth Annual Participation for Local Students

For Immediate Release

Tuesday, February 28, 2012

Contact: Tim Kelly
Office of Public Relations
Galloway Township, NJ 08240
Tim.Kelly@stockton.edu
(609) 652-4950

Galloway Township, NJ- Rather than relaxing or traveling to a warm beach town, students from The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey will participate in the “Collegiate Challenge” national alternative spring break program.

The 20 students, along with several staff members will volunteer with Habitat for Humanity in Rocky Mount, NC next week from March 11 through the 17th. The students will help construct and rehabilitate housing in the area for the benefit of families in need,

“This is the sixth year Stockton students have participated in this program,” said Jennifer Radwanski, Associate Director for Student Development at Stockton. “It is a great experience for them and a great way to make a real difference in the lives of those less fortunate.”

Radwanski said the program is a “win-win” in helping families reach the goal of home ownership. “The students are also making new friends and having fun. They work hard and they also have the opportunity to enjoy each other’s company and get to know some of the folks they are helping. It is a great experience for all concerned.”

Radwanski added that the group had participated in fundraisers to cover the cost of the trip and to present a donation check to Habitat for Humanity when they arrive on site.

-more -

Alternative Spring Break/page 2

The following students will participate: Melissa Lyon of Sicklerville, Jenn Cultrara of Jackson, Allison Jayne of Middletown, Laura Fricke of Milltown, Stephanie Ronan of Eatontown,